

Samantha Lubin Drum lessons
Risk Assessment COVID 19

As home lessons are starting to resume, there will need to be a few implications put in place by students, parents and the teacher to make the environment as safe as possible. As you are aware, Samantha Lubin is a drum teacher with many students, she will be entering into multiple households on a weekly basis. Any concerns please contact Samantha via phone or email to discuss this in advance of the home lesson.

Home Visits:

- A mask to be worn by Samantha during lessons. At the students discretion if they are to wear a mask, however it is desirable if both parties wear a mask.
- Both students and Samantha to wash hands before and after lessons. I will bring anti bacterial gel too the lessons too.
- Students to keep a 2 metre distance from Samantha at all times during the lesson, to be mindful of how to move around the drum kit during lessons to limit any sort of physical contact and to utilise space.
- No sharing of any material during the lessons, separate ipads, paper, drum sticks, any equipment and music devices to be used during the lessons.
- If a student or anyone in the household starts to show any symptoms please notify Samantha as soon as possible so alternative arrangements for the lesson can be arranged (if the student is well enough, then a FaceTime lesson will suffice). Please try and allow 24 hours for an alternative notification if possible.
- No cups or mugs to be shared during lessons, separate drinks are required.
- Toilets to be disinfected after use by students and the teacher - the teacher will try and limit access to the toilet when possible.
- If possible a window to remain open for the duration of the lesson.
- Try and limit the amount of people coming in and out of the room during the lesson. The teacher will keep the amount of rooms she enters into a minimum for the duration of time at a students house.
- Drum kits and other instruments to be regularly cleaned by the student. Before and after a session is ideal when possible.

If these measures are put in place then this will help to maximise the risk of transmitting COVID-19.
